Walnut varieties with a red kernel

These production varieties are starting to be more popular inland and abroad.

The varieties with the red kernel are originating from the Danube valley and Czech Republic.

The J. regia 'Rubra' and J. regia 'Red Danube' are considered as the mother of many red varieties, and find their origin in the breeding of the German research Institute Giesenheim in the thirties in the last century, therefore these varieties are not obtained by means of genetic modification but by natural breeding methods.

Red nuts are distinguished by the mild taste and health.

The red colour is at the same time the red colour is a feast for the eyes; processed in dishes and pastry the nuts are keeping their red colour.

In brief something very special.

Beside the varieties J. regia 'Rubra', J. regia 'Red Danube' and J. regia 'Aufhauser Baden' which we have bred already, we extended our collection with a huge amount of red cultivars,
